

Rich Lusk

Follow up on death from last week's sermon on Psalm 90 and the meaning of death:

John Donne's poem I mentioned: <http://classiclit.about.com/library/bl-etexts/jdonne/bl-jdonne-death.htm>

George Herbert's "Dialogue Anthem" I quoted:
<http://www.luminarium.org/sevenlit/herbert/dialogue.htm>

Jim Jordan has good thoughts on suffering and death here:
<http://www.biblicalhorizons.com/biblical-horizons/no-33-thoughts-on-euthanasia-and-suicide/>

I also recommend Peter Kreeft's Love Stronger Than Death and Nicholas Wolterstorff's Lament For a Son for further reading. Great books.

Since I preached on death last week, I don't feel bad link a couple family obituaries:
Gary North's son Caleb died at age 24 of a mysterious disease. Gary has written this essay in light of his son's passing: <http://www.garynorth.com/public/1967.cfm>

Former Westminster Seminary professor Al Groves died this week after a long, long bout with cancer. His wife wrote this story about his final moments: <http://whi.wts.edu/blogs/groves/?p=185>